Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

1. Claim 16 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a and e) as being anticipated by Nagy (6,561,375). Nagy discloses a plurality of disposable plates (Figure 3, column 3, lines 64-66) with a flat central portion (26) and a raised rim adjacent to the central portion consisting of the upward sloping wall portion shown at the lead line for (22), the flat top portion (24) and the outer rim (28) with a cutout in the outer edge of the rim (44, Figure 4, column 5, lines 19-20) adaptable to assist in separating the plates.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claim 17 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nagy in view of De Benedictis (EP 0 557 252 A1, August 25, 1993).

4. Nagy discloses the invention of claim 16 but does not teach the angular offset of the cutouts. De Benedictis discloses a concept for separating stacked paper plates using tabs to lift off individual plates wherein the tabs are offset from one another to allow easier separation of the plates. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have incorporated the concept of offsetting the gripping element built into the plate as disclosed by De Benedictis with the plate disclosed by Nagy to allow for easier separation of stacked plates.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments filed October 7, 2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. With respect to claim 16, applicant argues that the cutout in the rim of Nagy is for a different purpose than applicant's invention. Regarding claim 17, applicant has amended the claim to include an intended use for the positioning of the cutouts. In response to applicant's argument, a recitation of the intended use of the claimed invention must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim. In the case of claim 16, Nagy discloses all of the structural elements required by the claim and, additionally, does indicate the cutout can be used for insertion of the users fingers to pick up the plate (column 2, lines 20-24). In the case of claim 17, the only "structural" limitation is the relative positioning of the cutouts and the cutouts of Nagy would be inherently capable of being positioned as required.

6. In response to applicant's argument that the examiner's conclusion of obviousness is based upon improper hindsight reasoning, it must be recognized that any judgment on obviousness is in a sense necessarily a reconstruction based upon hindsight reasoning. But so long as it takes into account only knowledge which was within the level of ordinary skill at the time the claimed invention was made, and does not include knowledge gleaned only from the applicant's disclosure, such a reconstruction is proper. See In re McLaughlin, 443 F.2d 1392, 170 USPQ 209 (CCPA 1971).

Conclusion

7. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
